Preface

This special “soil issue” traditionally called “Contributions to Soil Zoology in Central Europe” brings together papers presented at the two last Central European Workshops on Soil Zoology (CEWSZ), both held in České Budějovice in 2015 (13th CEWSZ) and 2018 (14th CEWSZ). Pressure on higher scientometric outputs from various projects and grants results generally in publishing of conference contributions separately in international journals with an impact factor and makes thus difficult to collect and publish manuscripts presented at a particular conference in one place, in non-impacted journal. That is why this “soil issue” represents finally altogether a small set of papers from two last subsequent meetings disregarding the fact, that both, the 13th as well as 14th CEWSZ, there were well-represented conferences, in terms of the number of participants as well as in number of presented lectures and posters. In the 13th CEWSZ we hosted 39 participants from Austria, the Czech Republic, Hungary, Poland and Slovakia, and scientific part of this meeting involves 21 lectures and 17 poster presentations. The 14th CEWSZ was attended by 48 participants from Austria, the Czech Republic, Germany, Hungary, Italy, Poland, Slovakia and Slovenia, the which presented 21 lectures and 25 posters.

Starting with the 10th CEWSZ the proceedings of these conferences, thanks to the helpfulness of the Editors, are published in the peer-reviewed zoologically oriented journal Acta Societatis Zoologicae Bohemicae, which is the Journal of the Czech Zoological Society.

We wish to express our thanks to all contributors who provided their manuscripts for this issue of the Journal and we apologize to authors for delay concerning the manuscripts from the 13th CEWSZ. In addition, we also thank the reviewers and technical editors who helped us to complete this issue.

We hope that the presented papers will inspire further research in soil zoology.
